shape their future.

Sometimes, a child ends up in circumstances that are both frightening and dangerous. In these instances, it is vital that both authorities and the community intervene.

When we appoint a special advocate, the child finally has a constant person in their life; one person who cares about them, gets to know them, and holds the child's best interests above everything else. They become the court's eyes and ears as they speak on the child's behalf.

Changing lives starts here and now. Volunteer with Child Advocates.
